What a Chipinn Thinks.

Charles Cum Sin, the highly educated and proughly Americanized Chines lawyer, who has been in Salem s week in attendance at circuit cot was approached regarding hisopinion of the new Chinese excliion act. He thinks the act is jus and that his fellowmen shoulde excluded. He admits they re a detriment rather than a bendit to the country. He thinks, hwever, that the same rigid lawshould be enacted against the Italias and Swedes and other classes of migrants that are swarmare no rore desirable than the former. Dan Sully in Daddy Nelan.

paniel Sully appeared at the opera heuse in his new play, Daddy Nolan. The play is a sequel to the Corner Grocery. For an Irish comedy Daddy Nolan is unusually clever, and the title role, as presented by Mr. Sully, is a superior piece of acting of the kind. Daddy Nolan is a delighted mixture of humor and pathos and wins the hearts of the audience without any apparent effort. It is a characterization that must be seen to be appreciated. The quartette singing in the last act deserves the warmest praise. It was far superior to most quartette singing. The elaborate realistic setting of the stage is a feature of the performance. -Milwaukee Evening Wisconsin.-Will be here the 24th.
